

Abstract

A method, device and system are provided for a physical layer for a CATV upstream channel. A group of features is provided to address increased capacity and robustness to noise, while at the same time keeping cost and complexity to a minimum. Other methods and systems are also provided.